What's going on inside Santa Rita prison?

The Santa Rita Rehabilitation Center has been very much in the news lately, what with calls for its renovation, or demolition. KQED television would like to take its inside camera inside of that compound, but Alameda County Sheriff Tom Houchins says "No!" The impasse has resulted in a suit, filed by KQED Inc. and the NAACP, seeking to compel Sheriff Houchins to open those gates to the tv cameras. The public television station's interest in Santa Rita came following the death of a black inmate, Alvin Holly, who allegedly committed suicide in the Greystone maximum security section on March 31. This aerial view of Santa Rita looks south toward Interstate 580, with Pleasanton off the top of the photo. The sprawling county facility holds up to 1000 inmates

Major band review possible

Another Pleasanton parade?

PLEASANTON- Pending approval of the city council and police department, this city will be the scene of a major high school band review and parade this fall.

The inspiration of the Foothill High School Band Bososters and band director Bob Moorefield, the all-band parade and review would be held Saturday, November 8 at 11 a.m. A "halftime show" competition would follow that evening at the Dublin High School field.

Co-chairmen for the band review are Robert Morgan and Jim Davenport.

Moorefield said that 250 applications have been sent to high school bands throughout the state. Tentative acceptances have already been returned by prep aggregations at Dublin, Livermore, Granada, Silver Creek (San Jose), Piedmont Hills (Milipitas), Armijo (Fairfield), Clovis and Sunnyvale. It is also likely the renowned Glendora High Tartan Band from the San Gabriel Valley in Southern California will be in attendance. Fifty of the 250 applications will be accepted for participation in the review.

The tentative route of the parade, pending police approval, would find the 50 bands starting off from the Fairgrounds, going up Pleasanton Avenue to Rose, Rose to Main, along Main to St.Mary, down St.Mary to Rose. Moorefield also said their would be a competition strip of 450 feet, where the bands would be judged, possibly on Rose Avenue.

Their would also be competition amongst letter girl teams, percussion sections, drum majors and an inspection of bands. Trophies would be awarded to the first four places in each category.

Six-foot high trophies would go to the band adjudged the sweepstakes winner and the one winning the "halftime show" competition at Dublin High. Fifteen bands would participate in the latter show, each giving an 8 to 10-minute performance.

Amongst those being contacted to judge the various categories are Benton Minor, Cal State Fullerton; David Godecke, University of the Pacific; Roland Neilson, Ukiah High School; Tom Peacock, Anaheim (drum majors); Shirley Whitcomb, Pacific Coast Judges Association (letter girls); Rod Leoffler, Escalon High School (percussion sections).

Deadline for returning applications is Friday, October 17.

The Foothill High School band, in its brief two-year existence, has captured numerous first and runnerup trophies at parades and competitions throughout the state.

The band review is the first such event to be organized by the school, which begins its third year on the Foothill Road campus in September.

Costa Mesa firm gets concessions

The East Bay Regional Park District (EBRPD) awarded the boating and food concessions at Shadow Cliffs and Del Valle Park to Aquatic Rides, Inc. of Costa Mesa, the present concessionaire.

The firm has been operating on a year-to-year basis for the past four years and the new contract is for eight years, "necessary to enable him to amortize his 'considerable investment,'" according to the EBRPD.

Howard Benjamin, president of Aquatic Rides, said that to show a profit,it will require $100,000 to $125,000 to put the two-park program into full operation. He said gross receipts last year were "roughly $84,000" and that he anticipates "doing half again as much this year."

Under the new contract, Aquatic Rides will pay a $200 minimum monthly rental, plus ten per cent of the first $25,000 gross receipts plus 12.5 per cent of gross receipts over $25,000 annually.

The only other bidder, William Peluso, offered a higher figure but would have been unable to start operations until September. His bid called for the minimum $200 rental plus 15.5 per cent of the gross rpceipts.

EBRPD took into consideration the fact that Benjamin has $37,929 in equipment such as rowboats and sailboats, a tour boat, outboard motors, safety and concession equipment, and four years experience.

Peluso had no one on his staff with a boating or marina background, according to the EBRPD.

The contract was disputed by Director Paul Badger due to its increased length, and cast the lone vote dissenting vote on that basis.

Roll out the (trash) barrel

The first of 25 trash receptacles was put in place on Main Street, in front of Sprouse Reitz, Thursday afternoon. Rolling the barrell into place prior to it being anchored down are, from left, Larry Lindsay, incoming president of the Pleasanton Rotary, John Bowling of the city, Ted Mann, representing the chamber of commerce, and Gordon Ross, current president of the Rotary Club. Rotarians initiated project and put $1500 toward purchase of barrels. They will replace the red and white-striped containers that the Rotary had put along Main Street several years ago. Remainder of trash barrels will be put along Main Street after initial two or three week trial period for one above. Installing of other 24 should be completed by first week in August.

Architecture and entertainment to highlight Alameda County Fair

Public unveiling of its newest and largest building, improved entrance and exit routes and an expanded schedule of exhibits and entertainment awaits Alameda County Fair-goers Jtne 29, according to an advance schedule of events released today by the fair.

The annual parade along the streets of Pleasanton and crowning of a Maid of Alameda County highlights opening day.

Tom Kitayama, president of the Alameda County Fair Board of directors, describes the upcoming two-week run as "the finest program of entertainment ever produced by the Fair for the public." He cited the star-studded lineup of professional entertainment in the Amphitheatre, reduced prices on family nights, opening of the Young California Building and its 4-H, FFA and vocational exhibits as well as the vast array of floriculture, agriculture, home arts and crafts, horse racing and the carnival area.

Kitayama also pointed to operation of the BART feeder buses which link Pleasanton, Dublin and Livermore as well as Danville, Hayward. San Leandro, Oakland and most Contra Costa County points. In addition, Pleasanton is also linked to the Greater Bay Area by Greyhound.

The Fair's entertainment committee, under the direction of Dick McCarthy, has booked six headline acts in 14 days at the 3,000 seat Amphitheatre. Talent bookings were arranged through Betty Kaye.

In place of the fireworks of past July 4th evenings, the fair will present the nationally-known Now Company Singers and Dancers.

The Johnny Mann Singers will kickoff the entertainment spectaculars in the Amphitheatre on June 30 and July 1, supported by the music and comedy of Bernie Burns.

Impressionist Frank Gorshion will follow on July 2 and 3, supported by the Margo Tembey Dancers.

The extra sensory perception (ESP) powers of Gil Eagles, supported by British comedian Ben Wrigley and the Duane Dancers, follows on July 4, 5 and 6.

Guy and Ralna, from the Lawrence Welk Show, headline July 7 and 8, comedians Skiles and Henderson will appear July 9 and 10 and Emmy award-winning fiddler Billy Armstrong will be featured July 11 to 13.

A novel attraction at the Fair this year will be the collection of antique equipment, including an elegant show of some 12 surreys which will be housed in the Young California Building.The latter is the newest and largest building on the grounds , 38,000 square feet and completely air-conditioned.

Supervisors okay interim plan on aging

MARTINEZ—Contra Costa County will go with an interim plan for an area Agency on Aging until a more comprehensive program can be adopted.

The board of supervisors approved the interim plan, including goals and objectives and a general plan of thd organization Tuesday and said it can be in effect between July 1 and Oct. 1.

After that, the county must have specifics on the $33,000 effort by the county and, it is hoped, a contribution from the state to provide information and services to older persons.

Bicentennial committee needs your flag dollars

PLEASANTON - If a new flag is in your future for the nation's 200th birthday celebration, then please make that purchase through your local bicentennial committee. That is the appeal sounded today by the Pleasanton Bicentennial Commission.

"The sale of 50-star and Betsy Ross flags is a major fund-raising source for our bicentennial effort, as it is for most local groups," explained Bill Hirst, finance chairman for the PBC. He noted that "response has been steady, but far from overwhelming" for local purchases of flags and flag kits. Prices range from $1 for a small desk flag to $12.50 for a large Betsy Ross flag with pole and head piece. Hirst also noted that "we are urging people to fly their Betsy Ross flag every day, and right through 1981 if they wish, which is the end of the nation's bicentennial celebration."

The Pleasanton group also has plans for a "Buy A Flag Weekend," Friday and Saturday, June 27 and 28. Booths will be set up at all major shopping areas of the community, with an impressive array of city leaders helping serve as sales clerks at those vending spots.

Prior to that weekend, Betsy Ross flags may be purchased through the Recreation Department at City Hall, the Chamber of Commerce office on Neal Street or at Gingham Corner, Main at Neal.

Bi-centennial offer made of old Pleasanton scenes

The seven colorful "Old Pleasanton" scenes that were grouped onto one poster as a special bicentennial offer, are now available as individual prints, each suitable for framing.

The "old town" scenes were drawn by Pam Brekas of Pleasanton, under commission to the Pleasanton Bicentennial Commission. The 8x10 inch prints may be purchased individually at $1.50 each, or the entire package of seven prints sells for $9. The poster is priced at $2.

All monies received go to the Pleasanton Bicentennial Commission as a major source of funds to help sponsor a score of community pageants and projects throughout the next 12 months. Local sales outlets for these prints are: First National Bank, Valley, Bank, Gingham Corner, The Double Take, Taurus Crafts and Carousel .

Cooper absence delays county budget approval

Alameda County Bureau

Supervisor Fred Cooper's failure to appear for the third time in four budget meetings forced the final decision on the proposed $329 million Alameda County budget to be postponed until after press time last night.

Cooper — who had missed two of the three informational sessions — was in court all day long and thus many controversial issues could not be decided. Several 2-2 votes left the exact amount of the budget — and the exact amount of the tax increase — up in the air.

County Administrator Loren Enoch had originally estimated the tax rate boost would be from $3.02 per $100 of assessed valuation to $3.15. However, after a bigger than expected settlement with county employes, Enoch revealed yesterday in Oakland that the tax rate with the proposed budget would actually rise 18.5 cents rather than 13 cents.

In light of that, Supervisors Joseph Bort and John Murphy spent most of the time fighting to hold the budgetary line in various areas, but unfortunately for those wishing to see budget cuts, they seldom could get a third vote. In the rare cases when either Charles Santana or Tom Bates would agree with one of the two budget slashers, often the other would disagree.

However, some items were definitely deleted or added to the budget.

One request of particular interest to the valley — a planning department aide to work solely with Harlan Geldermann to develop the plans for Las Positas New Town north of Livermore — was voted down unanimously.

The controversial Public Information Officer position was also removed from the budget by a unanimous vote to save the county $23,549.

The cities of Pleasanton and Livermore got some good news as the Shared Recruitment Program which allows cities to recruit and test applicants through a central county facility had its funding extended for six months. At the end of that time, the program will be evaluated again to determine its continuance.

The library got some good news as its request for an extra $63,000 for the book fund gained the approval of three supervisors. The policy matters — which are in the proposed budget — were approved and three other requests will be decided on in July at the revenue sharing.

The Superior Court sent two judges and the court administrator to Tuesday's hearing and as a result a calendar coordinator was approved at $13,689 per year. It is expected the coordinator will save money in the long run by limiting time-consuming delays in the court.

The supervisors reluctantly approved a $1.7 million request for funds to offset increased welfare payment demands. Enoch believes the economy will worsen and thus more and more citizens will demand welfare benefits in the coming year. This money should cover those demands, according to Enoch.

In a similar vein, the welfare income was boosted 8.7 per cent (at a cost of $457,176) to offset inflation for welfare recipients.

Most of the controversial matters on the agenda had to be deferred in the absence of Cooper. One of those was a $10,000 bequest to the Amador-Livermore Historical Society, which could only muster two supportive votes.

The morning work session was preceded by a public hearing, which consisted primarily of citizens speaking against raising taxes in the county.

The Alameda County Taxpayer's Association presented the board with a five page letter calling for fiscal restraint. "The loud clamor for increased spending must not distract us from the realization that any government has a duty to confine its taxing and expenditure programs within the abilities of its citizens to perform within the bounds of reason," the letter concluded.

Civilians in crime battle

Crime in suburbs shows increase, club told

DUBLIN - "Hey, buddy. Wanna' buy a color tv? My mother-in-law needs an operation and I gotta' come up with the cash. I'll let ya' have it for 60-bucks."

Right.

And the last time it was her heirloom jewelry and you needed the money for the funeral.

Or was it your younger brother's 10-speed bike and the kidney operation?

The stories are the same, and, essentially, we're all to blame, according to Jack Agar and John Ortuno, two "businessmen" who didn't really present their wares at Thursday's San Ramon-Amador Valley Exchange Club luncheon.

They don't have to sell anything.

Their "pitch" — some would call it a soft-sell based on "fear," others simply "realism" — is the documented increase of crime in the suburbs.

It's growing twice as fast in Suburbia, U.S.A., as it is in urban centers.

Adding insult to injury, the populace is not only the victim, but the accomplice as well, they said.

"We don't take the time to know our neighbors," Agar said, "to know even their names sometimes. We move out to the suburbs and isolate ourselves like living in a private castle, really."

"What's that moving van doing across the street? I didn't know what's-his-name was leaving."

"But, officer, we always leave the back door open for the laundryman."

"We'll put these shrubs in front of the porch to give us more privacy."

No, what's his name wasn't moving, the laundryman wasn't the only one using the back door, and the shrubs gave the burglar all the privacy in the world to pick the lock.

"People just don't think it through," Agar said after presenting a 30-minute movie to the club.

"They spend a fortune to protect the front door, but put a simple doorknob lock on the back."

"Sliding glass doors are another big problem," Ortuno intuned. "The aluminum is light weight and not that strong. The sliding door used to be on the inside where you could block it with a stick, but now they've put it on the outside for better weather protection.

"Even if it's blocked," he continued, "the intruder can lift it from its slot and take it right out."

One or two screws in the top frame, tight enough to allow the door to pass, but low enough to prevent its being lifted out, would do the trick, he continued.

"But how many of you have installed them? Some contractors come back and put them in, or install metal plates for the same purpose, but that takes time, and, of course, time is money."

"The incremental costs to make a home more secure would be minimal," Agar added. "Some cities have forced builders to meet certain security requirements before building permits are issued. Not out here, however."

Agar and Ortuno recently opened their "Community Synergetics, Inc." offices in Dublin, and offer "a unique first step by private enterprise into the crime battle."

That's the key. One expects the hard-sell pitch, the "let me define the problem then provide the solution" syndrome: "buy my product."

But that's not the way they work.

Their wares are off to the side on a table. They provide the solution to the problems presented in the film.

Mr. Toyota Man: YES?
You were right. A sporty car doesn't have to drive you to ruin.

"Mr. Toyota Man, I'm glad I picked one of your three Celicas. They're all sporty, but thrifty. The Celica GT with five speed gear box. The Celica ST with four speed or an optional automatic transmission. A new, lower priced, limited edition Celica. That's the one I picked.

All three Celicas have 2.2 liter hemi-head engine, MacPherson-strut front suspension and radial tires. And all are easy on gas. The only thing that wasn't easy was deciding which Celica to pick."

City's legal costs are sad comment

Pleasanton's decision to add a "Deputy City Attorney" at a total cost in excess of $30,000 is a shocking comment on the status of "local government." And before we go fixing blame for that monstrous outlay of our cash, the people had best take stock of their own part in that drama.

With this latest expansion of the city's legal department, Pleasanton will be spending right at $100,000 this next fiscal year for that service. Ten years ago Pleasanton budgeted $13,440 for those services. In that same decade, the city's population has grown from 6000 to 32,000, an increase of some 533 percent. The outlay for "legal services" in that ten years expanded by something over 700 percent.

Nor does this added burden reflect the tremendous time consumed by the city council, the city manager's office and other departmental people throughout those long (and it seems almost weekly) "excecutive sessions" during which everyone sits around and raps about the latest court case.

Going to court seems to be one more evidence of our society's "new sophistication." But municipal government has been dragged through that particular wringer to a degree that transcends any comparative civil action. Local property owners are paying dearly for the city's day in court, and local services are suffering with the necessary dollar cuts in their own programs.

Why so much time spent in litigation? Growth and enviromental issues, the VCSD vs. Pleasanton ongoing tiff, irate builders. These are the major reasons. But it may surprise many Pleasantonites (and certainly ALL of the Livermore city council) to learn that Pleasanton's legal posture has for the most part been in defense of the city's growth restrictions, while the developers keep pressing us (and winning, we might note) in their demand for court-ordered expansion of city services.

It might be fair to conclude that it is because of the city's responsibility to respond to popular mandates ... the growth restrictions sought by the SAVE initiative, the council's attempt to respond to new General Plan limitations ... that we often find ourselves at odds with builders and land owners, and tied up in lengthy court actions.

It must also be observed that it is because of the failure of our elected and appointed officials — at whatever valley level — to resolve their problems through intelligent and honest exchange with neighboring counterparts, that we must too often terminate that discourse with a new battle cry: "SO SUE ME!" They do, and we suffer for it.

One clear result of this new direction is that we are becoming less and less a government "by the people," and increasingly a government of and by lawyers, with judges in distant cities rendering the final decision on matters of immediate municipal importance.

That, in the final analysis, could be the greatest cost of all, and one we might not want to pay in our pursuit of "community control."

FOCUS/Valley schools

The budget go-round

A potpourri focusing on the valley schools beat....

July 1 is the 1975 deadline for budget adoption. As tentative budgets are placeholders, the final rounds of salary talks between the various district negotiating teams and the Certificated Employees Council reps are still to come.

While discussions on benefits are proceeding, a meeting of the minds on salary schedule improvements has yet to occur....at least in the Amador district that is.

And in the Pleasanton Elementary School District, it has long since been stated by the administration that their are "no funds for increasing the salary schedules." Notes Doug Rose, director of business services for the Amador-Pleasanton district, "Funds for the purpose of improving the salary schedules must be derived from reductions of other portions of the tentative budget."

However, during the intervening weeks, the budget is open to "refinement" to reflect adjustments in income through new legislation and adjustments in expenditures....to meet salary and fringe benefit "requirements."

The requirements as presently penciled in fall somewhat short of those stated by Amador district CEC reps. The word we have is that the latter believes the district salary trio and board counsel Keith Breon can do better than 4 per cent.

A perusal of the Amador tentative budget does little to lend encouragement to any grandiose shifting of funds....nor does the foot-dragging of the legislature induce any hopes of additional funds being made available for 75-76.

While the Amador district's revenue limit is estimated to increase by 4.4 per cent to $1,232.54 per average daily attendance (ADA), Rose is assuming there will be no change from the current method of school financing.

As it stands now, $4.1 million of the total $7.7 million Amador ledger will go to teacher salaries. Add one million for classified salaries and $717,000 for employee benefits and you get $5.8 million going to salaries and benefits.

Shifting a couple hundred thousand dollars or more from programs or supplies to salaries and benefits would be a highly questionable move.

And to think all this could have been resolved by now if the legislature had taken more decisive action or authored more positive legislation.

A contract involving the Amador district and the United States Department of Justice, Bureau of Prisons, is slated to go into affect in the new few days.

The agreement calls for the Amador district to setup and teach courses in four subject areas to inhabitants of the Federal Youth Center at Camp Parks.

A "fiscal plan" amounting to $85,605 has been worked up and approved by board members. This covers the salaries of three teachers in welding ($14,679), business ($18,960) and mechanical ($17,540) as well as $14,500 for a FYC supervisor.

The district will also provide curriculum development, consultant and in-service training for personnel, clerical services as necessary along with office equipment and materials.

The contract also asks that Amador develop a vocational training curriculum with cluster design and module construction for vocational training in auto shop, welding, business skills and graphic communication and media.

The Amador district, as the operational arm, will be reimbursed on a monthly basis, based upon the proportion of the total contract completed.

The number of students, both foreign and domestic, coming into and leaving the valley this summer in the pursuit of education and culture will number in the hundreds if not the thousands.

Latest "entry" is the Foreign Study League chapter in the valley.

They are seeking once again this summer for 40 French students, ages 16-23, who will take part in the "American Experience" from July 30 to August 28. The students will attend English classes at Granada High School from 9 to 12, study in-depth a specific cultural area and take excursions throughout the Bay Area.

Needed are families who can provide room and board for these students for one month. Those interested may call either Bruce Bishop, a teacher of French at Junction Avenue School, at 846-6412, or Paul DeLanda at Granada High School, 443-5000.

round the town

I first heard of it from a Dublin bartending miss whose mother was a law school drop out. Others claim the idea was launched by a retired mortician, who reads a lot. No matter. The important thing is to spread the word, form the group, launch the campaign.

There is already a suggested title: "The High Rise Sierra Club." Has a nice, lofty sound to it. The club's goals are simple enough (as suggested by the lady bartender) ... "to allow suburbanites to repay San Francisco for all their years of concern over other peoples' environment."

She said her mother "got the idea while driving over the Bay Bridge. The Sutro Tower rose up out of the fog like John Wayne riding over the hill in pursuit of the Indians. Mother figured, right then and there, that San Francisco needed help, and lots of it."

We suburbanites would be asked to band together, examine The City's various and sundry problems, draft solutions, and then insist that San Franciscans respond to our thoughtfulness.

"Does your mother have any fears that the good people of SF might resent our help, or even decline to accept it?", I asked the bartending miss. "Heaven's to burbon, no!", she replied. "After all, if we're willing to spend our time telling them how to solve their problems, why would they resent it?"

Just for good measure, I checked with the retired mortician. I found him in his garage, oiling up his mimeograph machine.

"Tell me, old RM, what's this I hear about your working to solve all of San Francisco's problems?" I was also going to inquire about the very large stock of embalming fluid observed in his garage, but thought better of it.

"It's the very least we can do, considering all they've done for us over the years," RM replied. Setting aside his glass of fluid, he continued. "All these years we've been enjoying the best of San Francisco ... its bars, high-priced hotels, adult theaters and the like ... and never giving a thought to their problems. I think it's time we showed our gratitude."

I asked him just what he had in mind.

"Why heavens to head stones, lad, there is no end of problems we could be solving for those folks. Take their muni transportation system, for instance. Did you ever see a bigger blight in your whole life? The blessed things are always breaking down, and even when they run it's usually right over some poor tourist. And their cable cars! If they were ski lifts at Squaw Valley the state industrial safety inspector would shut down the whole bunch."

I inquired if that was perhaps the problem ... state rules that apply to ski lifts at Tahoe, but not to cable cars in San Francisco.

"You bet your family plot, that's the problem," he replied. "We have all these great regulations for places like Tahoe, Tulelake and Apperson Ridge, but for some reason nobody has ever had the courtesy to apply them to San Francisco. Take their sewer problem. It's absolutely the world's worst. The stuff runs right down whe streets after any good-sized rain.

"And while poor old Joe Aleeotta is grappling with things like building downtown ice rinks (when he isn't looking for Angelina, that is) the sewer wastes just keep running along. The man obviously needs help," my friend concluded.

By a stroke of luck, I was able to arrange a meeting with the Dublin bartender's mother. I caught her in between a meeting of the Civil Liberties Drop Out Club and an upcoming session of SALVE - Save All Louisiana Virgin Eels. She is a very busy woman.

"I understand you got the idea for saving San Francisco when you beheld Sutro Tower rising out of the fog," I stated, getting right to the point. "Yes, you might say that," she replied in between her stamp-licking routine. "Actually I first began to think about it when I froze my butt one July evening while watching the Giants in action at Candlestick Park. They lost, six-zip," she added.

"Are you suggesting that better planning might have made Candlestick a warmer ball park?", I asked. "Better planning would have given that land back to the seals," she exclaimed. "The damned place is as cold as a Louisiana eel hunter's heart. And I should know." I thanked her and went on my way, satisfied that I had gathered the news scoop of the year.

My story written, I called the San Francisco office of Associated Press to advise them that we would be transmitting an item of widespread interest, particularly to the people of San Francisco. They asked for a summary of my report, which of course I gave them.

The response was immediate, and direct. "ARE YOU CRAZY?! If we let a story like that get into the San Francisco newspapers, we'd be the laughing stock of the wire services."

"Do you mean that city people wouldn't understand a story about suburbanites and ranchers working their hearts out to help solve metropolitan problems?" was my incredulous query. But he had already hung up, first advising a co-worker that this caller was "some kind of suburban nut!"

And that, dear friends, was the end of the High Rise Sierra Club.

Letters to the editor

Classroom cooks?

Editor, The Times:

I have observed that any time an issue of substance is raised in the City of Livermore, an assorted collection of kooks and weirdos comes crawling out of the woodwork offering everyone the benefit of their vast experience and expertise. These words of wisdom sound more like the ramblings of a politician running for public office.

The complaints about a "Fundamental School" run the gamut from eletism and religious conspiracy to outright communism. In the words of Pat Paulsen, "Picky, Picky, Picky,"

Speaking as one parent who is fed up with the new math and other concepts that do not work, and who is disgusted with the lack of respect and order in the classroom: I welcome the basic concept of the so called "Fundamental School." If I had a nickle for every lunch, sweater, bicycle, etc., that has been stolen from school, or for every time a child or parent has been allowed to disrupt a classroom for the sole purpose of berating a teacher in front of their pupils, I could start my own school.

I am not opposed to open schools, traditional schools, fundamental schools, or what have you; but it seems to me that in order for any system to function there has to exist some semblance of order in the classroom. If the school board and the district administration would get off their duff and implement the needs assessment goals that were formulated with no small amount of time and effort by the citizens of this community, there would be no need for a fundamental type school.

If there is anyone I have not offended by this letter I can only promise, "IF ELECTED" I will try harder.

Day Care Centers

Editor, The Times:

What's going on?

I want to raise my own children, not let a day care center do it.

A recent article says my tax money should go to pay for child day care services, in this area. It's about time the truth about day care centers came out.

Noted Prof. Meers made a trip to the European countries and Russia to study their day care centers in relationship to some being built in U.S.A.

His study found mentally retarded children coming out of those centers due to lack of loving care the children needed. The people of those countries were shocked that America would even consider day care centers. Some of them were closing theirs down, because of ineffectness and effect on the children ...

It is evident that there needs to be some in depth investigation of such goals, especially when the reality seem to be staring us in the face.

It does not stand to reason that we should want to have mothers out of the home and children being raised by strangers, who would be responsible for teaching them.

The reality of all of this is staggering.

The answer seems logical that more federal money should be funded to increase the father's pay check. Then low income families could afford for mothers to be home and raise the children.

You can't solve your conscience by building day care servies for children and escape the responsibility of the consequences.

Murray's bargaining

It's time to stop the childishness.

The talks between the teachers and the district in the Murray Elementary School District have dragged on and on, and both sides must share equal blame for the sorry state of negotiations.

Although all profess — in good faith — that their main concern is the children, both the district staff and the Certificated Employes' Council (CEC) have allowed their own personal feelings to get in the way of a settlement.

The district staff has not handled the teachers well. There have been mistakes in the budget and a poor attitude in bargaining.

The district staff convinced the board to unilaterally adopt a 182 day calendar despite the fact that the teachers were still trying to bargain for a shorter one.

Despite the logic of the district's position, the unilateral decision on the calendar was hardly designed to help smooth the path of negotiations.

The mistakes in the budget —including a most embarrassing error that would have granted the teachers a 5.2 per cent increase despite their request for 4 per cent — serve only to fuel the teachers' belief that someone is trying to hide something from them.

On the other hand, the teachers have taken rebuffs at the bargaining table as personal insults and have responded by making personal attacks at Superintendent Don Williams. Williams is not a professional diplomat so his handling of this delicate situation has not been errorfree, but after all he is supposed to be a school superintendent, not a labor negotiator.

The teachers have always managed to be obnoxious as possible in public meetings, even going so far as to ask the board at the last meeting "When is Dr. Williams' contract up?"

This whole charade is becoming more and more silly and doing more and more irreparable damage to the district.

The CEC team is convinced the district is out to get the teachers and starve them into submission despite the fact that the median income of teachers in the district is well above $14,000 a year.

The district is convinced the teachers want to bankrupt the district to satisfy their own greedy demands.

Both sides claim they sincerely want to help the children of MESD grow up to be worthwhile citizens.

If they'd grow up a little themselves, they might be able to get down to the job.

Sound and Fury

Walt Hecox

About a decade and a half ago, about the time the permissive age of parents and teachers was beginning to bear fruit, one of the brightest, most talented and industrious young men it has ever been my privilege to know graduated from a northwestern University and took a job with the Seattle Times.

As newspapers go, my friends, the Times is one of the better publications on the Pacific Coast and in the nation and the opportunity for the young man was golden.

Believe me, he dropped the ball. Sent, as are many young reporters, to do duty on the night police beat he was outraged and subsequently bored.

One night, when half of Seattle burned down, he was sitting happily at a table in one of the village jazz clubs, inhaling a few measures of wheat squeezings and enjoying the music.

The Times, as you may understand, was a little late getting in on the story, lacking the protection on the police beat it had a right to expect. The Post-Intelligencer scored a clean scoop on one of the best stories to hit the city in a long time and the next day the Times' bright young reporter was out on the street looking for a job.

Perhaps three years later I met that fellow and heard him tell about the abbreviated period of employment with the Times. He was inclined to blame the newspaper for his misfortune.

"I hate police news and they sent me down there anyway," he complained. "They didn't even ask me if I wanted to go."

The remark, coming from one of the most talented and intelligent persons it has ever been my privilege to call a friend, was, I believe, symptomatic. It was the beginning of a disease which has plagued this country for ten years and one of which we must cure ourselves if we are to survive.

The disease is called "doing your own thing" and that may sound very well indeed but the philosophy from which it comes is utterly impossible in a nation where so many of us live in such close proximity to each other .

Freedom is one thing, my friends. Doing your own thing, without regard for the rights of others or your obligations as a member of society, is another.

We have laws, rules and regulations not to surpress liberty but to protect ourselves and our fellow men and womdn.

The young man had asked for a job and when he got it should have done his assigned task the best of his ability or quit. It was not the business of the city desk on the Times to ask him where he wanted to be assigned. A reporter's job is to accept his assignment and do the best he can until another comes along. We live a structured life in the world of business, and no matter what the editor on Livermore's First Street says any newspaper, including his, is a business.

I thought of the young man Tuesday when I met with Mrs. Lisa Emerson and Mrs. Phyllis Orloff, both teachers in the Livermore Unified School district.

Both, I believe, are highly intelligent women and probably good school teachers. Certainly they are conscientious and devoted to their jobs or they would have not been so stirred and perhaps incensed with one of my pieces they called and asked for a meeting.

They are, as near as I can tell, opposed to the fundamentalist school idea but nowhere near as much so as one might expect.

Discipline, they admit, is a problem. Part of the problem, in their minds, is the fact it has never been made clear how far their disciplinary rights extend.

They should, and I agree with this inside a framework of rigid and explicit rules, be the sole dictators in their classroom. Break those rules and they should answer to the principal or higher authorities. Too often this is not the case today and until the situation is corrected one of the most troublesome disciplinary problems in the schools will continue to exist.

Lisa Emerson told me she believes the discipline problem should start with the families and that too often that framework of behavioral guidelines does not exist at the family level.

One does not have to look far to know she is right.

As for the classroom the teachers believe their present method of teaching, which they do not believe to be permissive, is correct.

Frankly I am afraid to go too deeply into the matter because I am sure the hour I spent with the ladies did not sufficiently acquaint me with their theory of teaching.

What I did understand was that they try to approach their pupils each on their own intelligence and ability level and get the most learning into them they can on that level.

They were also both firm in their beliefs that the children should be taught to "think" and not learn by rote rules and tables laid down by our current society.

Once again I am unable to examine that concept with any definite conclusion. Somehow I got the idea the children they were encouraged, in one way or another, to do "their own thing" on the theory that in so doing they would develop a degree of creativity and initiative.

I am not prepared to either cheer for that concept or pull it apart at this stage of the game. Fundamentalist schools, which do not encourage helter skelter independent though but would eertainly encourage creativity, have succeeded and failed in the past.

Lisa yesterday told me about a Massachusetts school teacher who, in the 1870's, was stoned to death. Certainly his attempt at fundamental teaching failed. On the other hand I see no sign that the advanced education methods advocated by many school districts today have succeeded.

Young America has been doing its own thing for a decade and a half now. It has reaped a harvest of unprecedented crime, venereal disease, unwed mothers, poverty, riots and just plain bad manners while piling a fearful burden of welfare on older members of the community.

Perhaps that has nothing to do with modern education methods.

But when I think about them I cannot help remember the young man from Seattle who was not asked if he wanted to work the police beat.

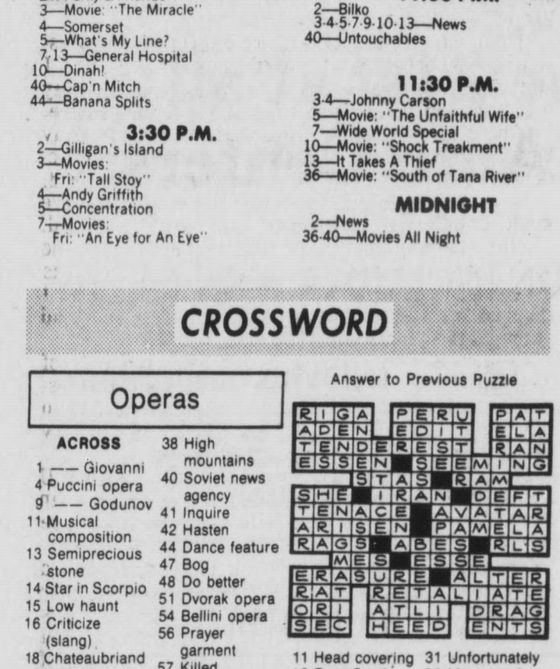
Answer to Previous Puzzle



astrograph

by Bernice Bede Osol

For Friday, June 20, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A solution will be found today for a problem you haven't been able to get a handle on most of the week. Settle it while you have the chance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be firm about insisting that one you've made an agreement with honors the terms, this party will make last-minute changes.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Get all the remuneration due you now for work or service you've performed. If you're a poor collector, the debt may take awhile to be settled.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Something will come up today that will put your managerial qualities to a test. You'll dispose of it in a manner pleasing to all.

Leo)july 23-Aug. 22) Keep a sharper weather eye out than usual on those who come under your charge today. You'll spot and fend-off a potential problem.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There is an old friend who is always delighted to hear from you, but who hasn't recently. Drop by or call her today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Ways can now be found to shore up your economic foundations and give you greater material security. Scout them out quickly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll be in a very ambitious mood today. You can get quite a bit acomplished, especially if you profit from experience.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't be reluctant about asking a favor from one you've helped in the past. This person will be happy to lend a hand.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You have a valuable ally who is working quietly on your behalf to help you get something you've been hoping for.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Something you will do today will win respect and enhance your status. IT won't be easy to pull off.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You've been doubtful about how a plan you've had in mind would work. Today, when you try it, you'll see your fears were groundless.

Your Birthday

June 20, 1975

Compensation and rewards long overdue will be coming your way this year. Don't give up now on projects you've invested considerable time in.

Altamont: a stagnant white elephant

A family of cows herds through an opening in the track wall and grazes lazily on parched grass growing next to the north turn.

A long house trailer, rusted and mud splattered, sits idly at the middle of the infield.

The sign on the front fence has been taped over. It used to read, "Juniors — 7-12 — $2." Now, someone with a magic tip marking pen has dropped the age to six. In these days, you've got to pick up a few bucks wherever you can.

It's getting harder and harder at Altamont Speedway, a name that conjures images of howling winds and disastrous rock concerts more often than whining engines and checkered flags.

The venerable race track has become a white elephant in the dung colored hills beyond Livermore. Owner Charles Jessup says Altamont could be successful, if someone had the time and inclination to promote auto racing. But even his own words lack conviction.

Altamont is nearly a ghost track now. There have been two, maybe three racing programs there in the first six months of this year. No more than three are scheduled in the remaining six months.

The Jessup family, which purchased the facility for $100,000 two years ago, doesn't even involve itself with the track anymore. It is leased to promoters who hatch their own racing schemes, and leave only the track concessions to Charley and his sons.

The 82 acre holding has been passively "up for sale," for some months now, Jessup says. He hasn't put it on the market, but would dump it for the right offer.

"When we bought it, we thought it was a good investment," Jessup said yesterday from the office of his burgeoning plumbing business in Hayward. "It probably still is. We had it appraised a while back, and the guy from the bank told us it is worth three-quarters of a million dollars.

"But we were expecting a weekly race program at Altamont and it didn't pan out. So we said why put more money into it. It's not good business."

The Jessup family is steeped in racing tradition, buying, building and driving cars for tracks all over Northern California.

The Altamont purchase was spawned by that affection for racing, Charley said.

The cash came from a plumbing business that is into the $2 million bracket annually.

"I was just driving through the hills with my son one day when we saw the track," Jessup said. "I said 'I wonder who owns that,' and it turned out that it was a bad thing to say. A couple of days later we found out it was up for sale, and then the next thing we knew, we were up to our necks in it.

"We had trouble the day we opened — it was April 1 and it was raining, and the asphalt was sinking. We had a hole in the straightaway big enough to sink a truck into. But we made $6,000 on that first race and we said the hell with the plumbing business, let's get into this racing.

"But after that, things went down hill."

The Jessups quarrelled with NASCAR over the ticket take, and suffered with drivers who failed to appear for races. Some programs were cancelled, and finally the family kicked out NASCAR.

Ken Clapp, a veteran race promoter, leased Altamont last spring for a series of six races that seemed destined to pump life into the sagging track.

He lured Indianapolis driver Roger Ward west for a race , and then detailed plans for a whole series of late model stock car programs .

Suddenly, Jessup said, Clapp dropped from sight, never to fulfill his Altamont dreams.

"They come and go all the time," Jessup says. "They call and then I don't hear from them any more. My policy is that I wait until I see the green of the money."

Rumors concerning Altamont's future float in and out of Jessup's office, much like the promoters whose schemes vaporize over night.

The Hilton Hotel chain was said to be interested in the land parcel because of its proximity to major highway junctions. Boosters of California dog racing were also eyeing the track, Jessup said. If Sacramento passes legislation permitting greyhounds, he claimed, backers would be willing to sink $11 million in transforming Altamont for the dogr.

Both rumors are are are met with tongue-in-cheek acceptance. But should either prove true, it could mean a tidy profit for the plumber-racer deterrent. That could be the actively pushing an Altamont sale.

One thing seems definite though, if Altamont remains in family hands the next few years. It will be mostly dormant as a racing center.

"There's too much of a gamble in racing," Jessup says. "You have to dig in your pocket for the purse, and then worry about the drivers and the fans. It's too much of a hassle, and I've got enough hassle with the plumbing business.

"It's not a money maker by any means."

Criss, Cullens combine, clip Country

Livermore National

The Elks' David Criss and Larry Cullens fired a seven-hitter at Country Market in the Livermore National major league, resulting in an 8-3 victory.

The two pitchers teammed up for 15 strikeouts. Criss earned the decision.

Cullens spanked three base hits and had two RBI's. Steve McKenzie singled twice for two more runs-batted-in Don Espinosa and Keith Grijalva doubled for Country Market.

Livermore R.V. Center won a minor league contest from the Foresters, 16-7. Mike Conaway drove in four runs, and Leo Garza, three. Donna Gouvaia was the winning pitcher. He had four shutout innings.

Bob Allen, who had doubled and singled earlier in the game for Air-Con, crashed a fifth inning home run Wednesday to force a 13-13 tie with Emperor's Garden in Livermore National major league baseball.

The contest will be replayed if Emperor's Garden is in the running for the National championship and a berth in the Tournament of Champions.

Bob Partillo and Jeff Baptiste both drove in three runs for Air-Con to deadlock the contest.

Emperor's Jerry Bacon doubled twice for three RBI's. Teammate Terry Moran went 4-for-4.

Livermore American

Jersey Crown Dairy defeated Red Carpet Realty in the Livermore American farm league, 17-5. Steve Otto and Pat Kennedy drove in two runs each.

Mike Braun of the losers singled and tripled and had three RBI's

Livermore Ruth

Dan Gil outdueled Ken Ebert in Livermore Babe Ruth baseball Saturday, bringing LLLRA a 2-1 win over St. Michael's.

Gil fired a three-hitter with six strikeouts to earn the pitching decision. Ebert allowed one hit and struck out 11.

John Bachleda drove in both LLLRA runs with a sixth-inning double.

Hobby Haven scored five times in the fifth inning to drop the Elks, 5-3. Jack Haller drove in two runs with a singled and double. Mike Morkowski had four hits, and Rick Wood, three. Tom Kramer of the Elks drove in three runs.

Valley Bank slammed Red Carpet, 12-7. Mark Kraemer drove in two runs for the losers.

John Bailey Enterprises defeated Winchell's, 12-8, as Carl Dice slammed out two base hits. Winning pitcher Tom Favero, and starter Leo Hoffman checked Winchell's on three base hits.

Value Giant defeated J.F. Shea, 11-3, as Kevin Gosney drove in three runs. Steve Waldera pitched a three-hitter with 13 strikeouts. Greg Tennyson homered for the losers.

J.F. Shea pounded out an eight run first inning Wednesday to survive a 16-12 Livermore Babe Ruth slugfest with the Elks.

Curt Honodel and Greg Tennyson crashed home runs for the winners, who had 11 hits in the game.

Tennyson drove in four runs. Honodel and Nick Hall each collected two RBI's.

Daryl Stone, who singled and doubled, knocked in two runs for the Elks. Tim Fernandez tripled, and Greg Sandahl and Steve Avila both had two RBI's.

Granada

Jack Trudeau pitched a masterful one-hitter for Red Wing Shoes Wednesday, defeating Columbus Realty, 8-0 in Granada major league baseball.

Trudeau struck out 13, and walked just one. The only base hit was Kirk Marshall's single.

Trudeau and Tim Weninger each had two hits for Red Wing. Weninger drove in two runs. Trudeau and Bob Peterson lashed doubles.

VFW stopped Granada Pharmacy, 8-0, on the shutout pitching of Randy Grant and Robert Giachello. Jesse Velasquez' double paced the four-hit Indian attack. Steve Arrington doubled for the losers.

Scott Macias raced home with the winning run in the bottom of the sixth inning as Granada Shopping Center edged Corrine's, 5-4. David Brown and Keith Cameron both had two hits for the winners. Joe Garfield singled home a run. Corrine's Craig Taylor doubled twice. Randy Johnson had one double.

Groth Bros. came up with four runs in the top of the seventh inning to beat Serv-Pro, 9-5. Pat Morgan homered and doubled for the Mets, and drove in two runs. Craig Lyons and Dave Brown each had two hits. Mike Kirkbride singled and doubled for Serv-Pro. Todd Howe and Darin Smith of Groth Bros. turned a fine double play.

JC lob ball

The Pleasanton Jaycees will hold their first Lob Ball softball tournament July 19 and 20 at Pleasanton Elementary School.

Teams may enter for a $45 fee. Jackets will be awarded first place teams with plaques for runners up.

In the fall, Barbara will attend the Jefferson Medical College of Thomas Jefferson University in Philadelphia, Penn.

Drain line

Construction to install a drain line under the railroad overpass on Niles Canyon Road may delay traffic up to one more week, said Clark Sovereign, assistunt superintendent for the State Dept. of Transportation at San Leandro.

Sovereign said two pumps currently exist to remove water accumulated in the dip, but drainage from nearby homes overload the machines.

Paving of the roadway over the drain line took place yesterday, and Sovereign indicated that construction could be finished in a week.

His brother, Clifford C. Hughes, resides at 4645 Black Ave. in Pleasanton.

Families needed

Forty host families are needed for the month of August when Foreign Study League is sponsoring the visit of 40 students ages 16-23 from France.

The students, accompanied by a tour leader, will arrive in the valley on July 30 and depart August 28.

They will be here to experience American life, improve their English and study in-depth a specific cultural area. The students will attend a class in English each morning from 9 to 12 at Granada High School.

Families interested in hosting a French student may contact either Paul DeLanda at Granada High, 443-5000, or Bruce Bishop, a teacher of French at Junction Avenue School, at 846-6412.

The Foreign Study League is a subsidiary of Readers Digest and also has offices in Europe.

'Safe boating is no accident'

The week of June 29—which includes the Fourth of July—has been declared National Safe Boating Week for Livermore by Mayor Archer Futch. National Safe Boating Week was brought to the attention of the city by the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla 95, Livermore, which has conducted classes in boating safety and seamanship over the past several years. The auxiliary, a volunteer organization, also patrols and assists in rescue operations conducted by the U.S. Coast Guard. According to Livermore Flotilla Commander John Kane, the auxiliary conducts courtesy examinations of boats to assure they meet current safety requirements. A decal is issued for those boats passing the inspection.

Metalworking

Airmen Russell T. Rose, son of Mrs. Mary A. Crow of 1561 Portola Ave. in Livermore, has been selected for technical training in the U.S. Air Force metalworking field at Chanute AFB in Illinois. Rose attended Duncan Russell High School in Tracy. His father, Joseph Rose, lives at 29006 S. MacArthur, Tracy.

For East Bay Parks

Morgan Territory purchase approved

Negotiations for the purchase of 970 acres of rugged Eastern Contra Costa County hill lands 9 miles north of Livermore as the initial segment of the proposed Morgan Territory Regional Preserve have been authorized by the East Bay Regional Park District Directors.

At the same time, the Board applied for a $100,000 State Park Bond Act allocation which has already been approved by the Contra Costa County Board of Supervisors.

It was indicated at the meeting that the land might me purchased for $412 an acre or around $440,000 and the EBRPD staff was authorized to negotiate a final purchase agreement with the owners and return to the Board for approval.

The property, owned by Margaret C. Allen, Stanley C. Smith and Allan A. Smith can be reached via the winding, narrow Morgan Territory Road, portions of which were first graded 89 years ago. For the time being, if the acreage was acquired, EBRPD would hold it in "land bank" status unopened to the public in accordance with provisions of the Park District Master Plan.

The action of the Board did not specify the 970-acre parcel in seeking the $100,000 the state bond funds but rather spoke of applying it to "Morgan Territory lands." This, apparently, paved the way for possible further purchases in the area to expand the new park. A negative environmental impact statement will be filed inasmuch as the acreage will be held in "land bank" status for now.

The headwaters of Marsh Creek are situated on the property; the intermittent stream runs southeast to northeast through the acreage; and prominent cliffs rising from 1400 to 2000 feet are situated in the center of the parcel. From the summit of the cliffs spectacular views of the Carquinez Strait, the San Joaquin River delta and San Joaquin Valley, Mt. St. Helena and even the distant Sierra peaks on clear days, are visible.

"The property combines representatives of all the major plant communities typical of the Black Hills and the east slopes of the Diablo Hills, within a compact area," Hulet C. Hornbeck, EBRPD Chief of Land Acquisition, said.

The proposed park lies 9.4 miles north of Interstate 580, 20.8 miles east of the Interstate 680 and Alamo.

House Democrats meet to beat President's veto

By EDMOND LeBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats, with grumbles about their leadership in the air, met all day Wednesday in various groups and then announced that they had agreed on working harder to override President Ford's vetoes of their legislation.

There was no renewal at any of the sessions of earlier suggestions by a handful of freshmen that Carl Albert of Oklahoma be replaced as speaker, members reported.

Asked by newsmem whether he intends to run for his post again in 1977, Albert replied, "As I have told you before, I will answer that next year."

He also said of the discussions at the various meetings: "I did not get the impression that they were dissatisfied with me."

Albert and Paul E. Tsongas, D-Mass., organized a late-afternoon meeting of freshmen, leaders and a few old hands. Afterward, talking with reporters, they centered their fire on Ford's vetoes, the Republican minority and the defecting Democrats who have been providing the margins to sustain Ford.

Terming Ford the most veto-prone president ever, Albert said those who supported Ford were blocking, bill by bill, "the most progressive program ever put before the Congress."

Tsongas said the leaders had "shown their accessability" and that Democrats should now work together to attack administration policies and not each other.

Several members both of the militant freshman group and of the older Democratic establishment said the series of meetings — which included a caucus of all Democrats and a session of the party's steering and policy committee — disclosed more harmony than had been expected.

Evidently there was less than complete agreement on the specific list of proposals the freshmen were pushing.

Supreme Court does away with lawyers' minimum fee

By MARGARET GENTRY

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you're planning to buy a house, write a will, get a divorce or open a small business, you may save money on legal fees because of a new Supreme Court decision.

The court ruled 8 to 0 on Monday that state and local bar associations may not establish minimum fee schedules that are enforced with the threat of discipline against lawyers who charge less.

"What does this mean for the consumer? Lower prices and more competition," said Alan B. Morrison, the attorney for the Virginia husband and wife who brought the suit challenging the Fairfax County Bar Association's minimum fee schedule.

"It means the consumer is going to be able to bargain with the lawyer for what the lawyer charges him," said Deputy Assistant Atty. Gen. Bruce B. Wilson.

The court decision appears to be the final blow ending the legal profession's 179-year-old system of setting the minimum fees that lawyers may charge for their services.

The system began to crumble after Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Goldfarb took their case to court and the Justice Department filed a similar suit against the Oregon State Bar.

Minimum fee schedules at one time were in effect in 34 states, but the American Bar Association now says the number has dwindled to about 20. The ABA recently backed away from its past support for the system.

At its strongest, the system threatened censure for lawyers who undercut the fee schedule on the theory that to charge less was a violation of professional ethics and would encourage shoddy legal work at cutrate prices.

The system was most effective in enforcing minimum rates for the legal work required to buy a house and settle an estate, the occasions when consumers most often need an attorney, Wilson said in an interview.

Most state systems established a probate fee averaging 5 per cent of the estate, he said. The fee for a real estate title search and other settlement costs involved in buying a house was about 1 per cent in Fairfax County, but varied nationally.

Bar associations in northern Virginia abandoned the fee schedules after the Goldfarbs won a lower court decision. Morrison said homebuyers' closing costs have dropped by one-third since then.

The fee schedule adopted by the Massachsuetts bar in 1972 provides examples of the charges established for other services; uncontested divorce, $300; organizing a corporation, $300; representing a client against a misdemeanor charge, $100; defending a client charged with a felony, $1,000; filing a suit for damages from an auto accident, one-third of the amount awarded.

An ABA poll, taken a year ago, indicated that minimum fee schedules were enforced in these states: Alabama, Colorado, Delaware, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, Montana, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia and Wyoming.

However, officials in Maine, Colorado, Rhode Island, Louisiana and Oklahoma said then that they were considering abolishing the system.

New law guarantees honest warranties

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission, issuing guidelines under the new warranty law that takes effect July 4, said a full warranty requires that a defective product be repaired or replaced within a "reasonable time."

Products manufactured after July 4 must meet the conditions of the warranty law although those made before that date do not, the FTC said.

In effect, the Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act precludes manufacturers, retailers and importers of consumer goods from voiding warranties because of hidden or unwritten exceptions.

The law and the new guidelines cover personal property normally used for personal, family or household purposes such as boats, photographic film and chemicals, clothing, appliances, jewelry, furniture, typewriters, motor homes, autos, mobile homes, vehicle parts and accessories, stereos, carpeting, small aircraft, toys and food.

The FTC said it also would apply to products that may become fixtures to real property such as central air conditioners and water heaters.

Ann Landers

Parents are at fault

Dear Ann Landers: I am very sad about our dear little 3-year-old grandson. He has picked up some four-letter words which embarrass his parents.

I'm sure he learned these words from them, since they argue a great deal and are both capable of some shamefully crude language.

Now they are applying a large wooden spoon to the child's backside every time he says them.

I have told my daughter and son-in-law to ignore the boy when he uses these nasty words because he does it to get a rise out of them.

They say I am wrong — that no child will continue to do something if he learns it will result in a painful paddling. Are they right and am I wrong? - K.G.

Dear K.G.: You are right and they are wrong. What your daughter and her husband don't understand is that children would rather be spanked than ignored.

Obviously, your grandchild is not getting enough attention.

Children need models more than they need critics. Most youngsters learn verboten words from playmates. Apparently your grandson doesn't even need to leave the house.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I love each other very much, but he has been after me to join a "swingers club" in Indianapolis "just to see what it's like."

I'm afraid of what it might do to our marriage. He says it will improve it — that all married people need a few extra kicks.

He claims if a couple really love each other "swinging" will not hurt their relationship.

Please tell me what you have heard from couples who went in for these "extra kicks?" Did it help? Did it hurt?

I'm a broad-minded person but this sort of thing seems very far out to me. — Muncie, Ind.

Dear Muncie: I have heard from several people who went in for "swinging."

Most of the letters were from wives who said they were being divorced because those "extra kicks" lead to emotional involvements and bitter arguments.

Tell your husband to forget it. "Swinging" is dangerous, destructive and has no positive aspects whatever.

Dear Ann Landers: God bless that man who wrote to praise his wife for all the things she does during the day.

He found out what a remarkable woman he was married to when she had to go to the hospital for a hysterectomy and he took care of the house and kids for a week.

Are you sure that man isn't from another planet? I've been married to an ornery cuss for 47 years and he has yet to give me a compliment, a thank you, a Christmas present, or a card on my birthday.

I never hear one word out of him unless he wants to give me hell for something. I must give HIM a compliment, however — he's the best fault-finder in the world.

How wonderful to learn that a husband somewhere appreciates his wife. Too bad I wasn't a better judge of people 47 years ago. — Lydia

Dear Lydia: You didn't ask for any advice so I won't give any, but my sympathy goes out to you.

I just hope there are compensations — like loving children and grandchildren.

Seventh-day Adventist clears, relocates refugees

Some 430 Vietnamese refugees who arrived recently have already been cleared and located through the efforts of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

The Adventists' Loma Linda University in Loma Linda, California provided help from its School of Medicine to process the people. The university and church provided lodging and food for them during the process. Cost to the denomination is expected to run in the area of $25,000, exclusive of the services of volunteer workers and contributions of clothing and other necessities by members across the States as the refugees scattered.

Jobs for the refugees have been found in the church's hospitals and offices from Florida to Oregon, reports Duane S. Johnson, associate secretary of the General Conference of the Seventh-day Adventist Church, with headquarters in Washington, D.C

Johnson states that the church has offered to provide English-language schools at Camp Pendleton, Calif. and Fort Chaffee, Arkansas. Already approximately 80 Vidtnamese are attending English-language classes set up especially for them on the LaSierra campus of Loma Linda University.

In many instances, teachers for the language classes are student missionaries who have been performing this service overseas for people who wish to learn English -- as in Cambodia, Vietnam, Japan, Korea and Indonesia. The concentrated language courses will be three months long. The student-teachers will receive scholarships to help with their college education.

Church members in many areas are helping with rehabilitation and orientation for the refugees. They have made them welcome in their homes until they are able to establish homes of their own.

Johnson says that many of these who worked in the Adventist Hospital in Saigon are among the refugees. The hospital is now closed.

"These people have been through a tremendous amount of tension," he says. "Their whole lives have been turned upside down. They have been uprooted from all that is familiar and they need our help."

SRV eyes seniors' problems

Trustees of the San Ramon Valley Unified School District reacted favorably to the suggestion by Eric Hasseltine earlier this week that the district look into the possibility of providing transportation for the valley's senior citizens, by utilizing school buses.

Prefacing his remarks with the suggestion that some of the unfavorable comments regarding the district that surfaced prior to the last bond election, should be countered with positive public relations, Haseltine cited Assembly Bill 696 as a possible vehicle for using the buses for private use, namely for the seniors.

"As the community grows and matures," he told the board, "more of us are becoming aware of the problems we have in common with the district, and the new growth in the valley causes new problems that require solutions."

Hasseltine cited the need for an ambulance in the valley, and the community's immediate positive response, as an example of what can be done locally.

Offering his services on a volunteer basis to form an advisory committee that could seek out public funds to finance the use of the buses, Hasseltine urged the trustees consider the plight of the area's senior citizens, partictlarly in view of the current inflationary situation.

"It's also appropriate for the district to take care of their needs," Hasseltine said, "because we go to them for a positive reaction when its time for a bond election."

Superintendent Allen Petersdorf said that with the changes in the education code, from a restrictive to a permissive nature, it might be legally possible to accomplish a transportation program for seniors after July 1 and suggested that Dave Stegman, Community Resources Director, look into the situation.

Additional members of the board indicated a willingness to further explore the matter, and Business Manager Arthur Bachelor promised to bring facts and figures on busing to the first regular meeting in August.

Valley Christian

Dublin — Sunday in the 8:30, 9:45 and 11 a.m services at Valley Christian Center, Dr. Michael Esses from Nelodyland, Anaheim will be guest speaker. His topic will be "Faith and Healing."

At 9:45 and 11 a m. there are a variety of Bible discussion classes for youth and adults. Concept five Christian Education Sessions for children pre-school through grade six will meet from 9:45 a.m. to 12:15 p.m.

At 6 p.m. Dr. Esses will speak on "The return of Jesus Christ." The service format will include sharing lively singing and special musical presentation by the Sanctuary Choir.

The Center's fourth annual Christian Growth Conference has been slated for June 22 to 29.

The conference includes a "Kid's Kamp" each weekday, June 23 to 27, for children of participating parents. All weekday sessions will be held at the Dublin High School Little Theatre, 8151 Village Parkway, Dublin. Also each weekday there will be special session for youth from 1:30 to 3 p.m. with Chico Holiday at Valley Christian Center.

On Sataurday, June 28 at 6 p.m. there will be a special youth rally lead by Chico Holiday at the Dublin High School Little Theatre.

THE CYCLE HUT, one of Pleasanton's newest places of business, officially opened its doors the first of this month. It is owned and operated by Tom Noble and Ken Clement (above) who are both Pleasanton residents. The Cycle Hut is located on Stanley Blvd. behind the 'Hound Dog'. Ken and Tom feel there is a great future in the sport of riding 'dirt' bikes. They sell 'em and service the machines as well as providing a full line of accessories. You can really 'fancy-up' a bike and one of their specialties is superior chrome plating, anodizing plus brass and metal polishing. For all you two-wheel devotees and addicts, Cycle Hut should be your headquarters.

RHONDA RAE AND RAY SMITH, recently engaged Valley couple, received their complimentary invitation to the BRIDAL FASHION FORUM which will be held at the Livermore Holiday Inn on Wednesday June 25. Leslie B. Jacobs of the COUNTRY STUDIO in Livermore is making the presentation in the photo above. He's acting as a sort of 'general factotum' of the affair which is also sponsored by ANDERSON'S HOUSE OF BRIDES, THE SQUIRE MEN'S FASHIONS, CARATTI JEWELERS, LIVERMORE TRAVEL, TURNER'S REGISTRY, CENTURY 21 — Marcy Crowley, HELEN'S BLOSSOM SHOP, H&W STATIONERS, CENTURY 21 — Reg Mongano AND SCARLETT LADY HAIR STYLIST. There will be exhibits, door prizes and a fashion show. For more information call 455-1400.

LIVERMORE LIONS CLUB, an organization always dedicated to the betterment of the local community and its fellowman, recently made a contribution of $100 to the American Cancer Society. Lion-President Nick DiTota (L) is shown above making the presentation to Barbara Langdon, Education Chairman of the Society while Dr. Roland Butnick (L) and Dr. Barry Kaminsky, Medical Advisor of ACS look on. Lion DiTota was installed last night as President of the Livermore Club for the 1975-76 year at ceremonies held at the LIVERMORE RANCHER. The Dublin and San Ramon Lions Clubs also installed their officers at the joint meeting.

Christian Science lecturer set to discuss spiritual life style

LIVERMORE - A Christian Science lecturer and practitioner from San Francisco will discuss the question, "What builds a spiritually satisfying life-style?" at the Vine Theatre in Livermore on Saturday, June 21 at 10 a.m.

"All of us," she says, "are engaged in the enterprise of living. We want to construct a life-style that has beauty and usefulness. We want it to withstand the storms of fear and destruction; the currents of unhappiness, sickness and sin. And most of all, we want the life-style we build to be satisfying, unique, individual, not patterned after someone else but original in design."

Miss Patricia Tuttle will be introduced by Leslie Cooper. Dorothy Gordon is in charge of arrangements.

Miss Tuttle is a native of Los Angeles and is a graduate of California State University at San Diego. She served as a Christian Science Minister for the Armed Services and Regional Assistant for Christian Science Board of Lectureship. The Board is made up of some 30 lecturers who give more than 4,000 talks and lectures on Christian Science on six continents each year.

This is neither all luxury sedan nor all road machine. It is a balance of both—the complete motor car.

The famed Jaguar styling and traditional luxury are both abundantly apparent—from the fine-china finish of the exterior to the polished wood and soft leather of the interior.

But on the road, the XJ6's Le Mans-bred heritage reveals itself completely. See it now in our showroom.
